Shot From 75-Mile Gun Might Be Deflected One Mile From Target by Earth's Turning

PHILADELPHIA, Thursday, Dec. 30 - A powerful gun, with a range nty-five miles, similar to that which bombarded Paris during the which combarded Fars during the war, might shoot as much as a mile away from the place where it is aimed, simply because the earth is turning, Prof. William H. Rower of Washington University, St. Louis, told members of the Mathematical Associ-

Washington University, St. Louis, told members of the Mathematical Association of America her this morning. "If we lived on a turning table," said Prof. Rower, "we would observe phenomena which are different from those to which we are accustomed. For instance, a level surface—that is, the surface of a body of water—would be a paraboloid of revolution instead of a plane.

Precision Required.

"Since the earth is a turning body."

Precision Required.

"Since the earth is a turning body, the phenomena which we observe on it are different from those which would take place if it did not turn. Because of the slow rate of turning the difference between the phenomena for these two states is not noticeable unless a sufficient degree of precision is used in observation. For example, on account of the rotation of the earth, a projectile in the Northern Hemisphere deviates to the right of its initial direction on the horizon. While this deviation is negligible for small velocities, it can be shown that for a gun having a range of seventy-five miles it may amount to nearly one mile.

"By means of the Eotvos torsion balance remarkable work has been accomplished, since by its use not only a very accurate determination of a level surface in a given locality is made possible, but also because it indicates positions of mineral deposits." Professor Rower's address was on the subject of the "Weight Field of Force of the Earth." by which he meant the combined effect of the earth's gravitation and the centrifugal force outwards, caused by the earth's rotation.

Arts Society Offers Prizes for Posters

The Seattle Fine Arts Society offers

The Seattle Fine Arts Society offers substantial prizes for the best poster designs with which to advertise the Seattle Civic Opera, according to an amount of the Pacific Northwest artists are reported working on designs which they will enter. Interest also has been aroused among the high school students and pupils of private schools of equal grade, as special prizes have been offered for designs submitted by them.

It was announced that the designs should be adaptable for use on bill-boards nine by twenty feet and the entries must be on stiff board or paper, sixteen by thirty-six inches in size. No restrictions as to color or medium have been made

Pleases Previewers

Several theatrical men and many of those connected with the show business in Seattle and community, were the guests of J. Lloyd Dearth last evening at a dress rehearsal of the mammoth New Year's Frolic to be held at 11.45 p. m. December 31. at the Pantages Theatre.

It was the unanimous opinion of those who attended the rehearsal that the work of Dearth had produced a frolic that will go down in theatrical history as the acme of high-class entertainment.

until 2, a. m. Saturday morning.

Totem Broadcasters, Inc., is composed of about a dozen of Seattle's larger business concerns, some of which have already offered attractive radio programs to the public. The new concern was organized at a dinner given last week at the Olympic Hotel by O. D. Fisher, president of the Fisher-Fiouring Mills Company, whose own enthusiasm for radio is largely responsible for both the Fisher's Biend Station and the broadcasting organization.

In the spirit of the totem which they have adopted it is the purpose of Totem Broadcasters to offer to the radio listeners programs of the highest class, in keeping with the dignity of the firms making up the membership. Two of the best known musicians of the city will be in entire charge of programs. Montgomery Lynch will be general director and Graham Morgan orchestra director and Graham Morgan orchestra director.

The Totem Broadcasters will be on the air every day, beginning January 1, for twelve hours or more, with the exception of Sunday. Programs will be presented by recognized and well known artists and will be designed to satisfy the varied tastes of radio fans. Voval numbers from solo to choral will be offered and instrumental offerings of all kinds. Orchestras will vary in size from trios and quartets with chamber music programs, to little symphony organizations. The makeup of the programs will include classic, popular and dance music, with equally careful attention given to each.

Pipe organ recitals and light opera productions will also be arranged.
