Maynard awarded record albums to some of the best dancers. "The amazing thing," says the disk jockey, "is that today's teenagers know all the dances from 20 years ago."
